Quake strikes Hawaii; gov declares disaster

HONOLULU—A STRONG EARTHQUAKE ON Sunday shook Hawaii, jolting residents out of bed and causing a landslide that blocked a major highway. Hundreds of hotel guests and hospital patients were evacuated, and aftershocks kept the state on edge.

Gov. Linda Lingle issued a disaster declaration for the entire state, saying there had been

Israeli president faces rape charges

JERUSALEM—ISRAELI PRESIDENT MOSHE Katsav was fighting for his political life on Monday after police said they had enough evidence to indict him on charges of rape, sexual harassment and wire-tapping.

Katsav, who cancelled his appearance to open the new session of parliament later Monday, is immune from prosecution while he holds the largely ceremonial post of president. But he

Wait for final CA ruling, frustrated nursing test 'passers' told

By Leila B. Salaverria, Christine O. Avendaño and Christian V. Esguerra

THEY CAME AS EARLY as 5 a.m. yesterday to the Professional Regulation Commission office in Sampaloc, Manila, hoping to finally take their oath as nurses after months of delay.

But the joy and relief felt by "passers" of the June 2006 nursing board exam after the Court of Appeals said on Friday that they could take their oath gave way to disappointment and anger when the PRC announced that the oath-taking would not push through.

"I am very, very disappointed," said Michelle Torio, one of the hundreds of graduates who came to the PRC from various parts of the country. She maintained that she did not cheat.

The Department of Labor and Employment stopped the PRC from administering the oath and from issuing licenses to the examinees who passed the nursing licensure exam because the court's decision was not yet final.

"What if it gets reversed?" said Labor Secretary Arturo Brion, who had been tasked by President Macapagal-Arroyo to resolve the controversy.

The Court of Appeals ruled that those who passed the board exam conducted outside Manila and Baguio City and those who registered for but did not attend the "final coaching" sessions at three review centers suspected of leaking test questions could take their oath as nurses.

Brion noted that the decision still had to be submitted to the clerk of court, before copies of it could be sent to the parties concerned yesterday.

He said he wanted to avoid further complicating the predicament of examinees in light of the possible filing of a motion for re-

Nursing groups seek reconsideration

By Armand N. Nocum

NURSING GROUPS YESTERDAY asked the Court of Appeals to reconsider its order for a selective retake of the nursing licensure exam, saying that the court did not act on the leak.

Claiming that the leakage occurred all over the country, the petitioners asked the appellate court to order a retake of Tests III (medical-surgical nursing) and V (psychiatric nursing) by all those who took the licensure exam on June 11-12.

The petitioners were Reno M. Tuño, Earl Francis R. Sumile and Michael Angelo S. Bruce, heads of the UST College of Nursing Faculty Association, the League of Concerned Nurses and the Bendahol na Samahan ng Mga Student Nurses, respectively.

They sought the issuance of a "status quo order" while the motion for reconsideration was being heard.

In a 15-page motion, the petitioners said the court glossed over the leakage when it did not count on the "likelihood that the favored examinees subsequently passed on these leaked questions to others."

They said that about "3,700 or one-fifth of the 17,800-plus" successful examinees were believed to have benefited from the leak when they attended the "final coaching" sessions at the R.A. Gapuz Review Center and the Inress Review Center branches in Manila and Baguio City.

They noted that during the oral ar-

Gov't failed to prevent killings —Senate

By Juliet Labog-Javellana

BOWING THE CRITICISMS OF local and international groups, the Senate blamed the spate of killings of journalists and judges on the failure of the government to prevent the murders and render justice to the victims.

In a 16-page report, three Senate committees that looked into the killings of journalists and judges said some law enforcers were involved in the media slayings and that a "huge pool of guns-for-hire" could be tapped to do the job.

"Despite the high-profile cases, the government has not responded adequately to the situation. It has failed to deliver justice," the report said.

It said the "failure of the policing and prosecution systems in the country is completely undermining the protection of individuals tasked with publicizing the truth and dispensing justice."

"But after all is said and done, improving police investigation should also be accompanied by government's commitment in prosecuting the suspects. The police and the courts must be committed to demonstrate that culture change is possible," the senators said.

President Macapagal-Arroyo, after receiving a stinging rebuke from the international community, recently created a commission headed by former Supreme Court Associate Justice Jose Melo to investigate the killings of leftists and journalists.

Comedians stand up vs poverty

By Vincent Cabreza
Inquirer Northern Luzon

BAGUIO CITY—THE SUMMER capital stood up against poverty on Monday by laughing at its troubles.

Clowns, comedians and rowdy artists produced a literal "stand-up comedy" routine as part of the global crusade called Stand Up Against Poverty. The show was organized for the city by the Philippine Non-Government Organization Council (PNGOC).

Mimes with red and white faces danced and pranced on the streets to get pedestrians to sign a petition condemning widespread poverty.

One portrayed a street cigarette vendor, although all that his wrap-on box contained were condoms. Another clown wore a giant billboard announc-

HOSPITAL WASTE WOES

DENR 'extortion' denounced

By Blanche S. Rivera

WHAT WAS SUPPOSED TO BE A dialogue among Metro Manila mayors and officials of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources on the Pasig River rehabilitation yesterday turned out to be a revelation of a stinking problem among hospital owners.

The president of the Philippine Hospital Association (PHA) accused DENR officials of extorting money from hospitals in Luzon and Mindanao that allegedly failed to effectively get rid of their waste.

Speaking before nine Metro Manila mayors, Environment Secretary Angelo T. Reyes and other environment officials, PHA president Tiburcio S. Macías said hospitals would not survive with DENR officials frequently demanding money from them.

"It is a big problem for us. Almost every week, officials of the DENR ... ask for P50,000 to P200,000 from hospitals," Macías said at the forum at the Manila Hotel.

There are 2,196 hospitals all over the country, all members of the PHA. Philippine Health Insurance Corp. does not accredit hospitals not registered with the PHA.

Macías, who was among the private sector guests at the dialogue, raised the issue after Reyes noted that hazardous wastes from hospitals were a "recurrent problem" of the DENR because a huge volume of these were untreated and sometimes found

All we want for Christmas . . .

By DJ Yap

TOOTHY GRINS ARE THE PERFECT gift for the elderly residents of Quezon City, who will receive free dentures in time for Christmas.

In an effort to bring early Yuletide cheer, the city government has launched free denture services for the poor, especially senior citizens who had lost all their teeth.

Dubbed "Handog Pagsasaya Tuwa at Ngiti para sa mga Bungi (Gift of New Cheer and Smiles to the Toothless)," the project stands to benefit 120 people, who will receive new sets of full dentures by December.

Mayor Feliciano Belmonte Jr. has signed a memorandum of agreement with three private dental laboratories to make the toothy dreams possible.

TALKING POINTS

- The textbook procurement project was funded by the World Bank / Asian Development Bank loan agreement. An international competitive bidding process was adopted in accordance with the loan agreement and our R.A. 9184.
- The World Bank monitored the project and was involved every step of the way. Every decision by the IABAC was subject to World Bank review and approval. Its conformity in every aspect of the bidding process had to be secured—as part of the loan agreement.
- There were eleven (11) bidders which included both foreign and local companies. The Bid documents allowed "consortiums" or "joint ventures" to bid.
- All bidders, including the Vibal consortium, were subjected to a strict four-level content evaluation wherein failure in a single level, meant disqualification on all other levels. Only four out of 11 bidders passed the content evaluation process conducted by the DepEd. The Vibal consortium was among the four qualifying bidders.
- The project involved three Lots—1)books for Grades 1-3 Sibika, 2)books for Grades 4-6 Hekasi, and 3)books for High School Year I-IV Araling Panlipunan. There were no winning bids for Lot 3/High School books.
- There was never any conflict of interest. Vibal Publishing House, Inc. (VPHI) and its affiliates were never in direct competition with one another. They never submitted competing bids.
- The Vibal Consortium composed of Vibal Publishing House and its affiliates JTW and LG&M, and LAMCO, a local paper supplier, submitted a bid for GRADE SCHOOL textbooks only.
- SD Publications, another VPHI affiliate, was part of a separate and different consortium referred to as the Leonardia consortium which submitted a different bid for HIGH SCHOOL textbooks only. Leonardia consortium eventually failed the content evaluation.
- Watana Phanit Publishing, Inc. is an independent foreign bidder. It merely obtained a copyright authorization of a book series from LG&M Corp. There is no partnership or agency relationship between Watana Phanit and LG&M or any member of the Vibal Group, at any given time.
- The Vibal Group, just like all the other bidders, was subjected to the same rigorous scrutiny and multi-level content evaluation to ascertain its compliance with standards set.
- The books are priced at an average of P43.00 each inclusive of printing and delivery which is often carried out under extremely difficult circumstances (see photos).

TEXTBOOK BIDDING, ABOVE BOARD

Vibal says: "We Won FAIR and SQUARE!"

VIBAL Publishing House, Inc. (VPHI) categorically denies allegations of any irregularities surrounding its participation in the World Bank/Asian Development Bank-funded textbook procurement program of the Department of Education (DepEd).

VPHI maintains that it won in the biddings "fair and square" having met all the stringent standards and requirements in terms of general experience, production capacity, financial requirements, track record, as well as technical and content development capabilities as set by both the DepEd and the international funding agencies.

It further states that the procurement/bidding process in question is in accordance with Republic Act 9184 or the Government Procurement Act which allows procurements funded by international funding institutions such as the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank to follow the procedures specified under the loan and grant agreements.

VPHI explains that because of the bidding criteria and requirements adopted by the WB/ADB, it was difficult for any single local publisher or company to qualify. For this reason, VPHI said it entered into a consortium with LAMCO, a paper supplier, and its affiliates, JTW Corporation and LG&M Corporation. This consortium, which submitted a bid to supply and deliver Grade School textbooks (Sibika Grades 1-3 and HEKASI Grades 4-6), won only for Grades 1, 3, & 5.

VPHI maintains that it never participated in a bidding against its affiliate companies, including SD Publications, which submitted a bid for high school textbooks only, under the separate Leonardia consortium. The high school textbooks fall under a different lot from the grade school textbooks for which the Vibal consortium submitted a bid.

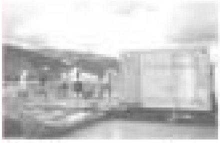

It also clarifies that Watana Phanit Printing & Publishing Co., Ltd. of Thailand, an independent foreign bidder, obtained a copyright authorization for another book series from LG&M Corp. but that, other than this, VPHI or any of its affiliates have no other existing partnership with the Thai firm or any of the other foreign bidders including ALKEM.

VPHI says that, throughout its 53-year history as one of the country's top educational publishers, its integrity and track record both as a business enterprise as well as a partner of government in many of its projects, have been unassailable and beyond question.

...But with Winning Comes Great Responsibility

Vibal accepts the challenge of participating in the noble national effort of improving the quality of education in service to the youth at the lowest possible cost.

Being awarded a textbook contract is not a bed of roses. A textbook contractor's responsibilities are a tough act altogether. After hurdling the stringent qualification checks and a series of strict evaluation and technical reviews, the contractor has yet to face another set of equally, if not more difficult, challenges as the pictures here show.

Where there are no roads, our deliverymen find a way.

... through rough terrain.

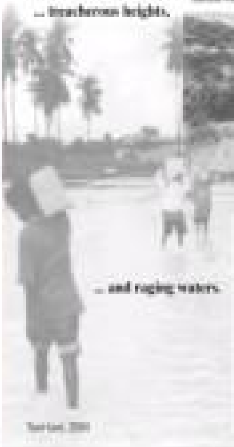

... treacherous heights.

So Why Do We Do It?

Vibal has adopted these projects as part of its corporate social responsibility initiatives. The price of P43.00 per textbook would seem insufficient to compensate for all the travails Vibal has to go through. If only for the countless smiles and the expressions of appreciation by the locals and casuals who were given temporary jobs as well as the teachers and the students who benefit from our books, the sacrifices are all worthwhile.
